

Industry report

Contents:

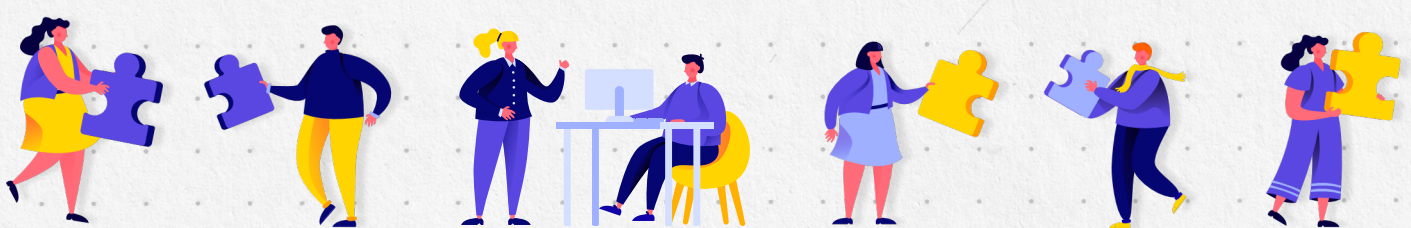

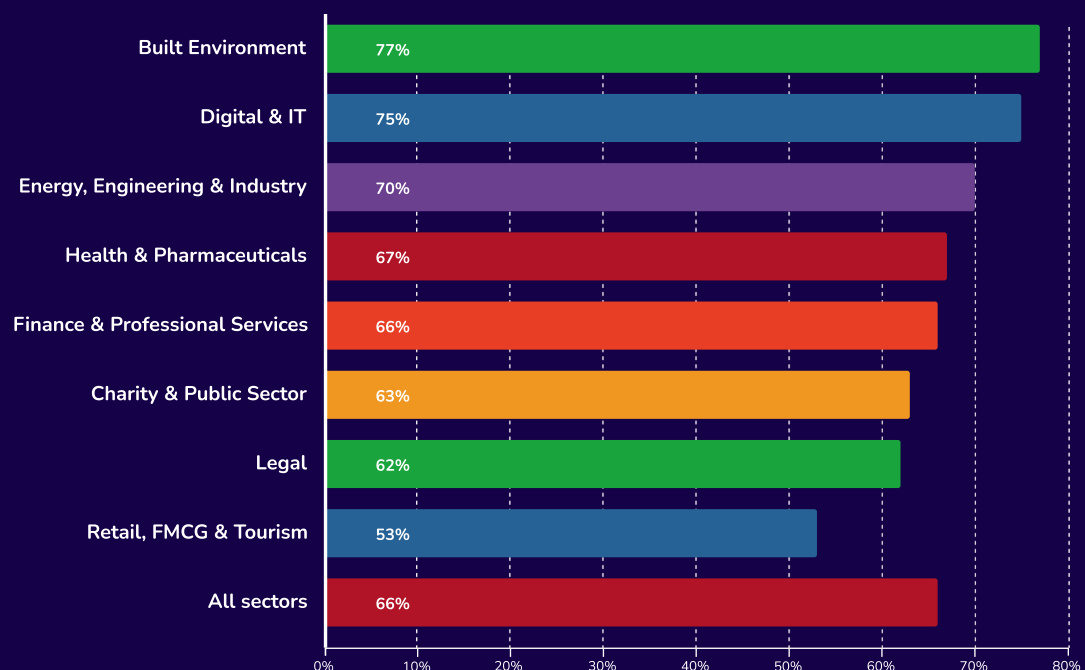

- State of the job market
- Position yourself strategically

Tip 1:

The state of the job market

It's true that economy has effected a lot of recruiting and such young people are having a much harder time breaking into the job market as compared to ten years ago. However, apprenticeships are emerging as a successful avenue to long term employment. College leavers are in a good position to capitalise on this as key sectors grow.

Employer recruited school and college leavers and other non-graduate entry-level hires by sector

Tip 2:

Position yourself strategically

Understanding how your skills and interests map to skills in employment is key to understanding what roles suit you. This allows you to take advantage of your strengths and also means you are more likely to enjoy your role!

Top 5 most common school and college leaver roles

